

Educational Philosophy

In today's society our students are continuously excited by new and challenging stimuli; adaptability to change therefore becomes a paramount objective of learning.

The mastery of basic skills is essential to our students as they prepare to function as responsible individuals. Students must also know how to direct their own learning by mastering the skills of independent inquiry, because circumstances do not enable us to predict with certainty just what today's students will need to know when they become tomorrow's adults. The optimum environment should be sought so that each student can develop physically and emotionally and acquire the information, academic skills, critical judgment, and creativity needed to lead to a better understanding of him/herself, his/her fellow humans, and the world around him/her.

The school district must continually strive to create, implement, and improve programs that are compatible with appropriate curricula and provide opportunities for innovation in teaching and learning. If this is accomplished, children will then come to realize more fully their own potential as individuals and be better prepared to appreciate and act responsibly in the society in which they live.

Cross References: AE, School District Goals and Objectives
IA, Instructional Goals

Adopted: Prior to June 1989

Revised: November 19, 2012